The Union must be taken cut of the hands of its enemies. It is not easy to realize that a party would really attempt to act upon a theory hostile to the very Constitution of our Government, when they had the power in its administration. The States can't exist half slave and half free. "A house divided against itself can't stand." There is between free and slave States an irrepressible conflict. The free States will not cease agitation until they can rest in the belief that slavery is in the process of final extinction. These maxims were put forth by men high in anthority before they were intrusted with power. They were regarded by conservative men as mischicvons declarations, but still rather speculative than practical. It was at last thought that they would never have power to tamper with the life of the Union by attempting to carry these speculations into practice; and had it not been for the criminal ambition of a few men in the South, the occasion or the power to put the theory into practice would not have existed. In the succession of crime one enormity makes the opportunity and provocation for

Early in this contest Abolitionists in Corgrees, pioneers in the canse, began boldiy to assail the Union as it had been. They pointed out an evil in its original structure and the necessity of a change; thus following up the speculations aforesaid, that "a honse divided against itself cannot stand." The drift of events is now too obvious to be overlooked. Conway said, in a late letter, that he wanted at the start that the war should be made an engine of revolution to change the Constitu tion of the Government. Thad. Sievers, the leader of his party in Congress, said "the Constitution as it was, God ferbid!" Jim Lane, Senator of the United States from Kansas, says "the Constitution as it was is played out, and I am in favor of sceing any man in Kanses shot down who favors the Union as it was." John Brough, who is a candidate for Governor in Obio, and whose cause has enlisted two Congressmen from this State, Smith and Clay, declares his opposition to a Union with slave States. Smith has been making speeches for Brough's party, and we see that Ciay is also invited to one of Brongh's mass meetings. Forney, one of the oracles of the party, says 'we must dispose of slavery or it will dispose

Indeed, we might multiply anthorities without limit. The centiment is the prevailing one now with the party in power, and it is reduced to practice by laws of Congrets, military acts, proclamations and orders.

The question in front is, by what authority is this change justified? Who has a right to make this Union something else? Is there any better authority for it than Davis & Co. have to accomplish their purpose? Both are efforts to change the Government from what the Consultation made it. Either is revolution, depending for success on power. Physical power without the shadow of law. If either succeed, the historian will write it down REVOLUTION. It will be an achievement the framers of the Constitution did not intend. They knew the Government they provided for would have been rejected by the States if it had been foreseen that such a power lnrked their institutions. But here is a result that

Such as our fathers made it, and as they adopted it, it was It is perjury to swear to support it and undertake by mere force to change it. No one can reconcile this with fidelity to high truets. No necessity can justify it; no reasons excuse it. Doing evil is none the less a crime because it cule the war vigorously. Morgan is a Union is done that good may come. It is the departure from the plain path of written law that to save the Union; but he believes -as every has involved us in mazes of difficulty, and uo higher law will get us out of them. Wc should have more charity for these revolutionists if they were in pursuit of any good; but the fact is, these politicians want power. We must put the opposition down, or they will put us down. We want to control this Union, and so shape it that we can control it. Give them a bill of sale of all the offices of the Union, and there would be no irrepressible conflict. In reviewing the legality of the mearare by which United States Treasury notes were made a legal tender, we omitted several bjections which we have before intimated The very fact that the power to emit bills of credit, or "greenbacks," was not only not granted by the States, but in discussion before the measure was adopted the Convention de clined to ask such power from the States, seems to reader all other comment unnecessary. If Congress has any such power it must be found in the provisions of the Constitution. Not only is this wanting, but the States themseives, which, if the power was not con the Constitution was evidently to prevent that rash and speculative system of unlimited credit by which a prodigal generation draws on the life and honor of posterity.

One of the objections to the legality of the measure is, as we have said before, that all matters of contract are of necessity among the reserved rights of the States. Congress being formed for national purposes only, was never intended to receive from the States the care of other matters which would be minor, and necessarily repugnant, to it. A fair example to prove that these matters of contract were. among the reserved rights of the States is, that in suits between citizens of different States, although the action or spit must be brought before the United States Conrt, yet the law of the State in which the contract was made must be determined; that is, in such action the State laws, and not any law of the Federal Government, must prevail. The only modification to this clear right is, when, by express provision in the Constitution, the Federal laws enter into and become a part of the State law As, for example, there is a provision of the Constitution which says no State shail large; while with free trade as to imports, make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts." How, we ask, then, the decision of such questions dependlng upon the laws of the States, and the States being forbidden from making anything but gold and silver coin a legal tender, can any State court declare that Treasnry notes, which certainly are not gold and silver coin, are a sofficient tender to satisfy the law, or to mount to payment of the debt against the creditor's consent?

It is apparent that the State courts, being thus restricted from recegnizing anything but the precious metals as currency, cannot go behind it and admit any other currency as legal, even if the State laws permitted it. Even if the General Government was anthorized to emit bills of credit, it would be a interfere with the institutions of the South question under this express restriction on the 221 of July, Congress, by an almost whether a State could recognize anything but | unanimous vote, resolved that the war was gold" and silver, among its citizens, as a legal tender in payment of debts, aithough it might be compelled to recognize it in debta due the General Government. But the power not being granted by the Constitution to pressed, but I regret to say that in every par Congress to emit any such bilis, it remains undeniable that neither State nor Federai court has any authority to require any creditor against his consent to receive anything but gold and silver coin in payment of debts.

To another objection, that all laws which mpair the obligation of contracts are essentially wrong, and in cases where the contract tially wrong, and in cases where the contract was made before the emission of the present bills of credit that the substitution of legal tender notes does impair such contract, it is tender notes does impair such contract, it is does have that effect."

This is but arguing in a circle. We already know that "coining money" is not the same negro soldiers, I emphatically dissented from the proposed use of "black bayonets."

Having now resumed the duties and the as printing "green-backs;" and although there may be a right in Congress to regulate the value of coin by alloy, there is no authority for that body to make anything but coin a legal tender. Changing its value does not impair the obligation of contracts, but it would be strange, if from one express want in a restricted instrument the inference should be drawn that Congresss has the power, as a may be a right in Congress to regulate the e drawn that Congresss has the power, as a principle, to impair obligations-that because t has the right to regulate the value of coin it has also the right to depreciate the price of land, or substitute a debased currency over the precious metais.

The Black Republican papers now in Ohio and Pennsylvania are enthusiastic about in any part of it. The States adopted the the poor soldier. It their devotion to them Constitution to be secure in the erjoyment of amounted to anything practical, we would their own institutione; to be protected in forgive them; but we read of immense meetings and the vast expenditure of money, but not one dollar for the soldiers' families. BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Sept. 28, '63, To the Democratic State Central Committee:
GENTLEMEN—Your esteemed favor; inviting me to meet with the people to consult with them upon the perilous condition of our beloved but unhappy country, has been received.

Ill health rendered it imperative that I should withdraw from the army, and in May last I tendered my resignation, which was accepted on the Sth day of June. Since then, I have been absent from my home, under medical treatment, but hope soon to return to Oble. tnrn to Obio turn to Ohio.

It has beer, and still is, my conviction that the recognition by us of the cotton States as an independent power, would end, forever, all hope of re-union with them. They annually produce four million bales of cotton, averaging five hundred pounds per balc, valued, before the rebellion, at ten cents per pound. An export duty of ten cents per pound would yield to the Southern Gover. normous revenue of two hundred million cliars per annum. In other words, the entire Administration of their Government-army. navy, and peace establishments—would be supported by a tax imposed on the would at they would always sell at the highest, and buy at the lewest, prices. With such a Govern-ment, favorable treaties would be eagerly sought by the firs!-class powers, and instead of a friend, we would have upon our border a constant rival, and, in consequence of the Abolltionists, a dangerous foe.

Entertaining these views, you may feel assured that none but reasons of mighty moment could induce me at this crisis to soiemuly declare that I believe that the only hope for the Union and the security of our liberties rests in the calm, patriotic, and, if need be, courageous action of the people at the ballot-box, whereby the party in power may be displaced, and a wiser policy be adopted.

Tunnel Through the Alps.

The greatest single engineering work ever undertaken is the tunnel for a railroad through Mont Cenis. A report on this subject has lately been presented to the Lower House of ne Italian Parliament by the Minister of ublic Works. This tunnel was begun in 1857 and that year and the two following were pent in preliminary operations, such as construction of houses, workshops, &c. W ompleted it will be nearly eight miles in ength. Mr. Bartlett, as English engincer, set in operation a steam boring machine, soon after operations were commenced, and about ight times the quantity of work was done by t that had been done by hand. But steam ould not be used for boring in the interior o ne tunne', on account of a want of air. The Italian engineers then proposed to substitute compressed air instead of steam; and their method is now in full operation.

This tunnel, when completed, will unite France with Italy, by rail, and it is to be a coint work between the Governments of the two countries, France psying a large portion of the cost. It is calculated that this tunnel will be completed in twelve and a half years from the period of its commencement; but with ordinary hand-drilling it would have re quired twenty-five year's labor. We can'r, however, help disclosing the most important part of it. The wailer, for whose veracity we part of it. The willer, for whose versative we youch, says that his regiment was lavited a few days ago to listen to a speech from the notorlous Parson Brownlow, an empty, low-fineg wind-bag politician, who, if he were not a ktave and a coward, would back up his hypocritical professions of "loyalty" by shouldering the mucket himself instead of traducing his superiors in intellect and every traducing his superiors in intellect and every other moral quality that adorns an honorable man. The regiment accepted the invitation. The Parson made the promised speech, and, as might have been expected, included in a very violent abuse of the noble and patriotic Vallandigham, now in exile, calling him a traitor, &c. The regiment became displeased traitor, &c. The regiment became displeased at the style of the Parson's speech, and manifested its disapprobation of his remarks by giving him to understand that he must cease his abuse of Vallandigham or stop epeaking. The Parson subsided and became very decite, all his vaunted bravery which he exhibited while in the North forsaking him. Great Battle at White Stone Hills-Three Days' Fighting-Three Hundred Indians Killed, and a Great Number Wounded-Our Loss Sixty, Killed and

[Correspondence of the Missouri Democrat.] FORT PIERRE, D. T., Sept. 18, 1863.

General Sully met the Indians, about two nousend five handred strong, on the third of thousand five hundred strong, on the third of September, so mething like two hundred miles north of Fort Pierre, where an engagement ensued. The Indians were overhauled by a part of the Sixth Iowa cavalry, about three o'clock in the evening, who occupied two hours in deploying the enemy in various ways, patiently awaiting the arrival of the command. The enemy were under cover in a ravine running north and south. The General formed a section of his force, and the battery on the north; the Sixth Iowa fell in line of battle on the east side of the ravine, and the Second Nebraska averley on the west side. The Second Nebraska opened fire on the enemy immediately, braska opened fire on the enemy immediately, which was kept up by both regiments until night ret in. The Second Nebraska after the third round advanced to within thirty yards of the enemy and popred round after round into the senglomerated mass of Indians, squaws, papeoses, poples and degs, the mingled noise of which was the most hideous

A party of some twenty-five or thirty men, nen and children arrived at abo o'clock on Friday night, over the Pacific Rail-road, from Rolla and Springfield, having journeyed to the latter place on foot and in wagens from Texas and A kansas. The wagens from fexts and Arageas. The families were driven from their homes by the rebels. Among the way-worn wanderers was a Mrs. Strah Frances De Limerand, with a young child, from Gainsville. Cook county, Texas. Her story is eveniful and affecting, comprising the following statements:

Her husband, Jacob F., was born in St. Louis, and she in Morgan county, Rlinois. They were married in Texas eight years ago. On the eccurrence of the war he was a Unionist, and accordingly was hated inveterately. Forty-seven men who thought and felt like him were know, two men shot, and he was him were hing, two men shot, and he was sentenced to the positentiary for treason. His wife "took an appeal" in the case, and furnished him an angur and a saw, with which he broke jul They were then going to seize and publish her, having threatened to seize and publish her, having threatened to hag her for effecting his release, but she one night left the town with her child and set out for the far away North. Joel had adrueans for traveling. The rest of their property was taken by the rebels. It consisted of horses, mnles, wagons, &c., and $900 in gold. The woman engaged to drive a wagon for Edward York, a Union man, who was also gottom North, and she fulfilled her contract. He log North, and she faithled her contract. He stopped below Rolla, while she came on with the party named to St. Louis. She is an intelligent and apparent'y a very reliable woman.

She states that hundreds of Unionists in Texas are "out in the woods," and praying and wairing for the coming of the Federal army. Another of the party is Weeley Lewis, with four children, whose mother was murdered by rebuls at Fayetteville, Washington county, Atkassas. He having entered the Union army, she and her children satted for Clein county, Texas, to join him. On the way, at Sherman, Grayson, Fort Smith and Van Burne, and where wally suppressed to a sherward to a small face the county. ren, she shrewed'y represented herself as the wite of a rebel soldier of Little Rock, and thus received as good lare as the rebels could give. year after date, the United States will pay to the bearer Ten Dollars, with five per cent. in-terest." On the margin is the declaration— "Treasnry Note"—and "This Note is a Legal Tender for Ten Dollars." There is also en-graved on it the date of the Act of Congress authorizing its issue, viz: "Act of March 3, 1863" The notes are to be signed by the Isos" The notes are to be signed by the Treasurer of the United States, and the Register of the Treasury, and will be impressed with the red scal of the Treasury, after the manner of the "Legal Tender Notes." The American Bank Note Company in New York in execution the week in its best state. ork is executing the work in its best style.

The 10s have on the left end a large portrait of the Secretary of the Treasury, engraved expressly for this note, in a style much superior to that on the "legal tender" $1 notes, although from the same original. Exactly in the center of the note is an eagle, with out-stretched wings, rising alott, carrying in its talons the flag of the Union and the olive-branch. In the distance is the Capitol at Washington. On the right end, in an oval, is Peace, a female figure robed in white, bring-ling clearly in her train. At each puper corner reace, a fermal figure robot in wante, oringing plenty in her train. At each upper corner is the denomination, expressed in geometric lathe cuttings of the most intricate and beautiful character. Around the note is a border of similar style of work, expressing, in continual repetition, the words—"United States of America"—"Ten."

The 50 note has on the left end a viguette heathed sword, her right arm leaving upon the Bible and the Constitution, which are sup-ported by a pillar of the capitol. This figure, which is very imposing, occupies nearly the whole of the left end of the note. Under it is the denomination "fifty" in lathe-work. At the right hand lower corner is a very fine por-trait of Alexander Hamilton. Above is the hotographic green tint on the tace and also n the back.

Scretary of the Treasury has determined to issue, in addition to these one-year notes, interest notes running two years, having semi-annual coupons attached. It is maderatood that there will be $50,000,000 of these issued to the banks only, according to the terms of the recent loan.

The rebels captured ulnety prisoners with arms and horses. The river at this point, under the influence o the late rains, commenced rising yesterday, and was slowly swelling during the day, with twenly-seven inches water in the canal last evening by $100 to $100 t seven inches water in the canal last evening by the mark. During the previous twenty-four hours the river at the head of the fails had swollen three lnches, which is equal to a rise of over half a foot at Portland. The srise is only temporary, being cansed by the late raius along the Ohlo. The Ken tucky is rising, though slowly, and the water at this point may continue to swell to-day. The weather was delightfuily clear and pleasant. At Cincinnati yesterday at noon the river was stationary, with two feet seven luches water in the channel hence to this piace.

From Pittsburg we had no advices, and we are of the opinion that the river at that place is still receding, and that the late rains did not extend to that piace to do any amount of good.

The Lower Ohio continues in a very bad condiher until after she had salled, and explained the difficulties in the way of interference in such cases. The late rains have had but little effect upon the lver, and we are of the opinion that there will be no rise of any consequence for over a month to come. The Lower Ohlo may improve a little from the effect of the rise in the different streams flowinto it, but It will not be sufficient to allow the boats laid up to get over the different bars. The Cumberiand and other streams continue to faii, with little or no prospect of a rise for some time to come. Capt. McLean's new boat, the Boston No. 3, for

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT.

A VALUABLE INVENTION.—One of the best, and at the meet simple contrivances for hurning Kerosene 0 id in a common fluid lamp. It is so simple that any child can apply it, an it will burn Kerosene Oil in any fluid lamp without even changing the wicking. It is one of the neatest things that has come under our notice, and is destined to become very popular with a timb one it. It burns the Oil perfectly, with no smoke, and will save many times its cost in a few months, and for portable or night lamps it appears to be the ne plus ultra.—(Syraense Courier and Union.
